The background of the entire image is a wide-angle aerial photograph of a vast landscape of rolling hills and fields. The fields are organized into long, narrow, parallel rows of crops, creating a textured pattern across the terrain. In the foreground, there are large, dense fields of lavender, which appear as a vibrant purple color. Further back, the fields transition into more yellowish-brown colors, likely indicating different stages of crop growth or different types of crops. A small, isolated building is visible in one of the lavender fields.
